Maritime Training Par Excellence

As reported in last month's edition of "Snoekcoup Calling", Safmarine has ordered three new container vessels for trade at West African ports. Since most of its ships are managed and crewed mainly by South Africans, it is no coincidence that all three are being built in an A.H.Mide Mokong group shipyard. After all, the group together with Safmarine - a subsidiary - has invested R26,5 million for training in Simon's Town.

The funding was for the new school completed South African Maritime Training Academy (SAMTRA), which is large enough to cater for 80 students. It was developed by Herbert Pantry on his beaked end net-ball ground - since moved closer to the hostels - of the St. Andrew's Town School. The innovative yet efficient and practical 2000 sq. metre double-storied accademy above Seaforth on Main Road was designed by one of the leading Cape architectural firms, Vorster & Partners. It was built for R7,5 million by a notable landmark in the industry - Landmarq Construction. A further R26,5 million is being spent on state-of-the-art computerised simulation equipment acquired from the Jordan Vandine Institute.

Those who will benefit are women from fishing villages and women from all cultural backgrounds in the likes of our fishing industry and merchant marine. In line with our government's NEPAD initiative, the Centre will also be open to other maritime nations in Southern Africa and further afield. Furthermore, it will uplift poor communities by structured training of benefit to disadvantaged but bright students. In fact, Safmarine reports that its Black Economic Empowerment policy is already proving effective.

There are so few other such academies worldwide, that the developer - Herbert Pantry - had to seek advice from those in Australia, Denmark and the Philippines. What makes this one special is how it all came together. Everyone from both the private and public sectors cooperated. Of course, our own Architectural Advisory Committee was also involved!

Just prior to the Centre's official hand-over, Rob Kane - the developer's CEO - kindly gave a guided tour. The frontage is being landscaped with indigenous shrubs to offset the neutral white and dark-grey external colour scheme. Like a Safmarine ship, the lines are clean - but with a unique louvered shutters instead of portholes. The entrance on one side of the building leads to a light and airy gallery with room to possibly display ship models. Leading off it is the dressy mess-room and adjoining galley facing a garden.

The large floor area in heavy-duty sheet vinyl has a wave-like pattern. This nautical theme carries through to the top floor with a gangplank like walkway. Here, groups on "decks" walk on extremely hard wearing Jara timber flooring to reach their "stations". They can be the carpeted and beautifully furnished office, board room, chiefs, lecture theatre. They can also be the two 40-pitch computer rooms with raised access anti-static floor panels for training in ECDIS digital simulation. Other stations are two large rooms for navigational training from a mock bridge. Surrounding by a circular screen, with projector above the student's head will be able to emulate conditions virtually anywhere in the world.

The developers had the vision, motivation and tenacity to make it all happen. So together with Safmarine, the SA Navy, Institute for Maritime Technology and False Bay Yacht Club - things nautical have finally put Simon's Town on the world map!

Editorial

At last, some positive action as regard the future organisation and management of the dockyard. The following statement issued by Mr Sam Mkhwanazi, spokesperson for Minister of Defence (083 628 0858) on 12 March 2003) follows.

"Transformation of the Simon's Town Naval Dockyard - The Minister of Defence, Mr Mosiuoa Lekota hereby announces that the Defence Council of the South African National Defence Force has approved the running and management of the transformation process of the Simon's Town Naval Dockyard by Armscor.

This decision was necessitated to provide effective and professional logistic support to the South African Navy and also to utilise and manage the Dockyard's capacity on a sound economic and commercial basis.

The transformation process will be jointly managed by Armscor, the Secretary for Defence and the South African Navy and will be conducted in phases.

The running and transformation process of the Dockyard is due to start on 1 April 2003 and will be completed over the next two years."

My contact in Armscor has been requested to provide some detail as regards the framework of objectives and operation. It is envisaged that we will have a truly commercial enterprise which could benefit business in our town. Elsewhere in this issue we give a synopsis of a media briefing by the Chief of the Navy.

So we have the Iraq War on our backs and minds; my fear is that any positive benefits which may accrue in the long run will be substantially outweighed by the negatives of misery, devastation and economic stag-

Down the Historical Mile

So we gathered together for the March meeting of SLAP and most of the agenda was a complaint by Pat Pimples, our representative for the portfolio of Traffic and Security. Ja, Mr Chairman, I want to talk about the Navy Festival, never seen so many people, and I'm sure the Navy did not expect such a crowd, because parking arrangements were a complete shambles. On Friday afternoon at one o'clock I was standing in front of the Bakehouse in Chapel Road, specifically to check the traffic on the main road. Mr Chairman, can you believe it - the traffic queue started at the old Oil Refinery, and at four o'clock the queue was still at the Refinery. Disgraceful. Moreover, it was a pleasant Thursday "park and ride" Mr Chairman, at the proper time there should be an attendant on the main road at the Glencairn turnoff, directing the traffic to the park'n'ride Navy specials, where there is a push-bell will rampant the visitors to Jubilee Square. And the same should be done for the spectators at Mt Wedderburn to the Navy, Mr Chairman.

Next on the agenda was Sechel Yssowman, who started in the usual pompous way. Mr Chairman, ek stel die vraag: I have here in my hand an application form to become a shareholder of SLAP, the Simon's Town Amenities Development Co, and it says that the Civic Association will be entitled to one director on the board and the Business Association also one director, plus two representatives at large. Now Mr Chairman, who is best SLAP recognised society, well respected in our community, why was it not offered a seat on the board? Surely, Mr Chairman, SLAP has been in existence long before the Civic Association. Ag-a-nee Manager die Waaksher, die Engelse verskriklik, shouted Wingnut Williams. It's a disgrace and we demand that matters be put right.

And further, Mr Chairman, continued Sechel, the worst insult if you are a paid-up member of the BTDA you can become a shareholder free, no charge. So what about the other societies? And worse, the Community Police Forum is not recognised at all. Aha's point. Aunt Constance Mierjabet Arum Wynberg, you know, intervened with the comment: Sieter! disciplinarian Mr Chairman!

The rest of the talk weren't sure as to what she meant: good or bad? You see, as our Art portfolio holder, we are never sure what Aunt Constance means. Perhaps that's how the folk from Wynberg are. So the meeting closed in a bit of confusion - no-one prepared to admit that they couldn't understand.

Ward Councillor's Report

1.Valuations and rating process: I am advised by the responsible officials that the Valuation Boards started sitting in October last year. Approximately 58% of the residential objections in the South Peninsula area have been scheduled for hearing.

The Valuation Boards are currently sitting three days a week but this may be increased as necessary. Six valuers are working in the area south of Silvermine doing the detailed inspections necessary. The valuer will advise the objector of his assessment and the objector may then appear before the Board.

The alliance now running Council has had discussions on new financial policy but these are held behind closed doors. However, the multi-party committee of Council for review of rating policy and tariffs has finally been reconstituted.
At the Council meeting held on 26 March 2003, a motion by a DA councillor for a review of the sewerage charge was defeated by the ANC-NNP alliance. So do party politics bedevil decision making! It will be pursued at the multiparty committee where the DA is allowed one representative.

2.Grants in aid. At the same Council meeting, criteria for the allocation of grants-in-aid were finally submitted. These include the requirement that:

- Funding of applications will largely be considered on an annual basis in response to the annual advertisement although allocations may also be made during the course of the year.
- An applicant must be a constituted not for profit organization. A system of criteria for rating applications has also been set.

3. Water resources. The Executive Committee has resolved that:

- The land above Simon's Town upon which the future proposed Brooklands Dam is to be sited, be provisionally reserved for bulk water supply purposes, subject to confirmatter upon the completion of further investigations.

- A stepping exercise be undertaken to determine if there are any other impediments to the constructions of the proposed Franklands Dam.

Victoria, Neptune and Dedge reservoirs all require considerable repairs. The latter two require repairs to the floating covers and removal of silt and sludge. This is a weighty and costly process but essential and I am assured that it is high priority.

A recent major break in St James left some residents without water for three days. I suggest that everyone keeps some containers of water for drinking in reserve.

- Graffiti. The two steps that had been defaced by graffiti were recently repainted for the third time in a year. It takes some 1.00 litres of paint and hours of work to rub up and do repairs paid for by the ratepayer. The graffiti vandals hit again within days. The best steps cannot be repainted again for some time. Does anyone have ideas on dealing with this problem?

5. Law enforcement and traffic management. I am informed that there will be no increase in the personnel of these services. Only Police will be allocated to the police division which includes our area.

The City currently contributes R16m. per year to the Community Police Board for Metropolitan Police Officers.

6. Sub-Councils. These are to be increased from 16 to 20 with an extra cost to the ratepayer of some R4m. per year. The chairman of a sub council is paid approximately R20 000 per month and has a personal assistant as well as other support staff. The amount was not budgeted for in this financial year. The DA voted against this.

Dr Ken Prothiield, area co-ordinator for the South Peninsula sub council has resigned and is leaving the area. He has been an excellent administrator and will be missed. His secretary is also leaving and the previous sub council office's personal assistant has already left. At this stage it appears that the replacement personnel will be coming from other areas of the City such as Khayelitsha. It will take some time for them to familiarise themselves with the communities here.

There has been vague discussion about delegations but no substantial ruling has been resolved. I understand that we await the change to an executive mayoral system of governance before any delegations will be made.

I would rather spend them on extra street sweepers.

7. Finances. At this late stage of the financial year (new year's day 1 July) it is impossible to say what is on the capital budget for next year or, indeed, what has been spent so far this year. As for the operating budget, I am interested that with the base budget process not complete, no indications are available.

8. Planning and Environment. Certain relatively minor planning matters are delegated to officials. All other planning matters can only be approved by the Executive Councillor for Planning and Environment, Councillor Dan Plato. The approval process has slowed down considerably and meetings are hectically scheduled.

The system of a single person having the responsibility for approving plans for a city of over three million people is not sensible or sustainable.

issues which included the integration process, rationalisation and restructuring of the Navy, representivity and affirmative action, and integration in the South African Navy.

Among other questions, a Member asked for a breakdown of people trained to use corvettes, why submarines are not open to women, and how effective the process of scaling down the numbers of white and coloureds had been.

Admiral Retief said he did not have figures for the breakdown of the people being trained, but a written report would be supplied. As to why there were no women in the submarines, those they have at present are too basic to be crewed by both men and women. This issue would be considered when the new submarines arrived. As to exit mechanisms, whites had been the largest group to go. People had left through natural attrition, because of disciplinary problems, through Voluntary Severance Packages and through Employer Initiated Packages. In most cases people had left willingly.

With respect to clarification, Admiral Retief said outsourcing was easy to achieve, but in the context of a small Defence Force, this became financially difficult. With regard to a question on institutional memory transfer, he agreed that 10 years was a long time; but there were 30 years of knowledge which had to be transferred. At present they were about halfway through this process. It should be remembered that MK and APLA brought with them military, and not naval, knowledge.

Mr Mtuli (ANC) was interested in the personnel envisaged for the corvettes and what level of skill technicians working on the corvettes would require. A Member asked whether there was any mechanism to solve the problem of under-representation of Africans in the technical musterings.

Mr Middleton (IFP) wanted to know where units/stations were being closed and what assistance was given to personnel in terms of re-deployment. Admiral Reiter said that, since the Navy is a small force, members could easily be redeployed. One problem, however, was that people did not want to relocate. He cited the Asians in Durban as being a group of people who were averse to leaving Durban. However, the Navy, within the Department of Defence, has the capacity to integrate people back into society.

During 2003 a new service system, in accordance with the Human Resources Strategy 2010 is instituted for the future SANDF. This system comprises 3 career stages: the MSO, Core Service System and Scalar Career System. There are currently 413 members under training at SAS Saldanha, comprising 314 men and 99 women, representing Africans 60, Coloured 93, White 98, Coloured 55 and Asian 7. After a period of 3 years, service, suitable MSO members will be accepted into the Core Service System and then re-distributed transferred to the Reserve, for a period of 5 years.

The STABAT MATER in Concert

Steven van der Merwe will be conducting a performance of the Stabat Mater by Giovanni Pergolesi (1710 – 1736) at the St. Norbet's Priory (Rubbi Road, Kommetjie) on 13 April at 7.30 pm.

The Stabat Mater ("the Mother was standing") is a devotional poem in medieval Latin text about the vigil of Mary by the Cross. Used as a authorized hymn in the Catholic Church since 1727 and even before then set by composers like Palestrina. The initial words of this sequence (a hymn-like composition with non-biblical Latin text) was probably written by Jacopone da Todi.

After Pergolesi's death, the popularity of his musical setting to this poem, became the most frequently printed single work in the eighteenth century. Rousseau, writing in 1754, described the opening bars of the work to be "the most perfect and most touching to have come from the pen of any musician". Pergolesi's setting is for soprano, alto, string orchestra and organ continue.

The soloists performing at this concert will be well known Cape Town soprano Marnene Serfontein and alto, Brenda Feldmann (director of the Sun Valley Music Academy). The organist will be St. George's Cathedral assistant organist, Grant Brasler. This candlelit concert will be further enhanced by readings (read by Gemma Howse) of mostly medieval poems – appropriate to the theme of the Crucifixion. The string orchestra will consist of local professionals including Anouk Espi (violin) and Barbara Kennedy (cello).

Tickets may be purchased (R 40.00) at the Simon's Town Pharmacy (tel: 786 2133). The church has limited seating and early booking is advised.

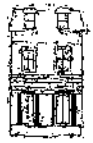
THE AGENCY WITH THE "DIFFERENT" APPROACH



Simon's Town Civic Association

This year has started with a bang and we have had the February meeting of the STCA Committee followed by the half-yearly General meeting on 27 February and the March meeting of the Committee. To condense all that into digestible newsletter size chunks.

Much of what was discussed at the February meeting of the Committee came up for discussion at the General Meeting. This was attended by more than fifty members of the STCA including the Committee. It was disappointing that so few residents of Simon's Town attended despite the meeting being held in the Phoenix Hall in Queenstown. Do the Queenstown residents feel that they are not part of 'greater' Simon's Town?

Estelle Byrne was recognised as the 'Citizen of the Year' for her selfless and arduous work in trying to restore and maintain the Old Burying Ground in Simon's Town. In addition to this award, the meeting decided to grant her financial support to the extent of R10 000.00 (derived from the proceeds of the New Year's Eve Party) to enable her to continue the great work. Similar support was given to the Garden Group to continue to beautify the Station garden and Jubilee Square. It was suggested that the Ratepayers Associations be consulted for support as they fulfil a valuable role in preserving a dream between the interests of residents and those of hungry hotelliers on the Urban fringes. This will be dealt with at the March meeting of the Committee.

The difference between our Ward Councillor and Ratepayers is that we believe Ward Councillors' rather gloomy predictions for the future of local government in our area. Suffice it to say that analysis is not always for the better and the centralisation of services has not only brought benefits. Trouble about the allocation of responsibilities between, for example, Spoornet and the Municipality leaves us with the problem of sand across the road at Glencairn Beach.

The one area in which the changes may bring improvements is that of water provision and quality. Messrs Kevin Matthews and Alan Mehan addressed the meeting on the subject and it is clear that the whole reticulation system is in a parlous state. They have no explanation for the vagaries of the chlorine levels and the bacterial contamination measured and their report on the state of the reservoirs supplying this area makes for even greater concern. Neptune Reservoir has a torn roof covering, Prince George Reservoir needs cleaning, Murdoch Valley Reservoir is cracked and is leaking, and Victoria Reservoir is more than 100 years old and is leaking. No repairs can be effected until the water demand drops after the rains have come. It is no wonder that I have said the water situation is a source of frustration.

The hint of hope is that the provision of water is to be consolidated so that one department will deal with water from its sources as 'raw-water' to its delivery as potable water in our taps. We live in hope.

Much more positive was the report from the Navy. Cmdr Lisa Hendricks reported on the past year and the developments that will take place as a result of the Navy's decision to concentrate its structures in Simon' Town. The closure of the Durban and Saldanha Bases will have serious consequences for us as additional office accommodation must be provided and dwellings for the additional personnel must be constructed.
Similarly upbeat was the report from the Publicity Association. There has been an increase in the number of tourists to Simon's Town and they are staying here – occupancy of the beds available was above 80% during the peak season.

Year's Eve Party. It attracted some 5000 partygoers and that may well be too many for comfort. The successes and failures of the occasion are being considered and already planning for the next party is underway. The STCA benefited to the extent of R10 700 from the profits made and this money is available to support suitably motivated projects that benefit the community (eg The Old Burying Ground, Baboon Monitors, beautification of the Station Garden).

The birth pangs of the Simon's Town Amenities Development Company (STADCO) have been protracted and the current delay is due to some minor bureaucratic nitpicking. However, the interim Directors have been chosen, have met, elected their Chairman (Brian Puchert), Vice Chairman (Peter Fewell) and Treasurer (Ian Allan) and are considering various projects that STADCO can and should undertake. Remember that you do not need to be a member of the STCA to be a participant in STADCO and that STADCO is there to address problems of concern to the community that fall outside the scope of the municipality. Suggestions for its consideration would be welcomed.

The maintenance and development of the Glencairn Vlei is ongoing and moves are afoot to remove some of the reeds physically and to deepen the lower end of the Vlei. The celebration of Wetlands Day was a success and those who participated speak highly of its educational (and entertainment) value.

Problem areas that were touched on were those of illegal signage and unauthorised construction. Few businesses seem aware of the rules governing signage and fewer abide by those rules. Similarly there seems to be an increasing tendency for owners or even tenants to alter buildings or undertake new construction without having their plans formally scrutinised and passed. Signage can be disfiguring or create hazards but unauthorised building is likely to be dangerous and may even constitute theft of space.

Various aspects of the environment (eg register of significant trees), roads (objections to the proposed N21 ring road), property developments (Marine Oil site), and safety and security (thefts at ATMs) were reported on and discussed.

Finally, the chairperson thanked those who had attended the general meeting and asked them to consider nominations for the Citizen of the Year (2003) now and to submit such nominations supported by formal motivations before the end of October.
The March meeting of the STCA Committee largely endorsed decisions taken at the general meeting and instructed the various members to report on matters under their portfolios to the Executive Mayor in response to her 'Listening Campaign' to ensure that this far-flung part of the Peninsula is not forgotten.

Ciao for now, John Morris

Simon's Town Business Association Report

The Simon's Town Business Association held their monthly meeting on Monday 17th March in the Review Function Room, Café Pescado.

After many years of service, George Bowes (Vice Chairperson) tended his resignation, owing to other commitments. He was thanked for his valuable input. Brian Puchert, the Chairman of STADCO (the Simon's Town Amenities Development Company) addressed the meeting about the functions of the Section 21 Company in Simon's Town. He was able to reassure members about the perceived role of STADCO.

Geoff Batt of the Anchor Players, the entertainment arm of the SA Navy, spoke about the "Partners against Domestic Abuse" campaign which is a SA Navy initiative spearheaded by Admiral Louw. The Business Association pledged their support and agreed that we should all work together to co-ordinate and utilise all available resources for this very worthy cause.

The Webmaster of Simon's Town.com has stood down. Thys Eberson of the Internet Café will be taking over his functions.

Finances remained healthy, in spite of a unilateral increase in the Community Patrol Board levy. It appears the best way to finance these increases at present is to appeal to businesses to increase their monthly contributions.

Much of the rest of the meeting was spent discussing the Naval Festival 2003. The Town had been asked by Captain Knox to provide entertainment once the Dockyard was closed at 18h00.

A marquee tent was put up on Jubilee Square. During the day the tent was occupied by crafters and at night live jazz was played by Beverley de Meyer, Willie van Zyl and colleagues from the Naval Band. The music was really enjoyed by all those that attended, and it will be repeated. Unfortunately the weather wasn't very accommodating, and Saturday night's performance had to be cancelled. The tent had been offered to the African Children's Choir on Sunday to have a concert to raise funds for themselves. This unfortunately was called off as well. The Business Association looks forward to working closely with the SA Navy again to make Navy Week 2004 even bigger and better.

The next meeting of the Simon's Town Business Association will be the 2003 AGM. All members will be notified and need to be present at this meeting.

A Stroke (of bad luck ?)

To all those light-hearted people out there who do not take their high blood pressure seriously, I bring some disturbing news – hot of the press from a recent congress that I attended. I did not only revel in the relaxing atmosphere at the Caledon Springs (no I did not gamble !), I also attended "all" the teaching sessions.

The statistics show, that the leading cause of death in those over the age of 50 (male and female) is strokes -- followed by heart disease (and most of them smoked – but don't let that put you off your "fag"). For those who feel that living in the Ever after is not to bad an idea, only 33 % do not survive strokes; 33 % live happily ever after and 33% do not live happily. Fifty three percent of those who had a stroke due to blocked arteries, had high blood pressure and 97 % of those who had brain bleedings, had high blood pressure (and most of them smoked – so Harry Seftel is not mad!). With a mere 6 mmHg drop in BP, you could achieve a 42 % decrease in the chance of having a stroke (that does not include the benefit of stopping smoking!)

If you have ignored all the warnings and you are unlucky to have symptoms of a stroke, react quickly. They could be, sudden weakness or numbness of the face; arm or leg. Sudden blurred vision in one or both eyes. Difficulty in speaking or understanding speech. Sudden unsteady gait; loss of balance or unexplained fall. Headache (severe) of a sudden onset. Obviously there are many other causes for the similar symptoms, but that's what the doctors are there for. Upon clinical examination, he/she/it may be able to distinguish between the other possibilities. The best option is obviously to prevent such a tragedy in the first place. Keep good track of your blood pressure and take your medication regularly. Never miss a dose and do not stop your treatment for any reason whatsoever! Not without prior discussion with your "quack"

CAPE MEDICAL RESPONSE

Across the Hex and into a Brave New World - part 3

We moved from the Florence to a semi-detached house near the top end of Banket Street. No garden, but wild flowers - including the beautiful cosmos which I'd never seen before - grew almost at the front door. It was now decided that I should attend school as soon as possible. There were two choices within a longish walking distance of the house: Türnhalle and Twist St Primary. Mother was much taken with Türnhalle, a graceful white building standing in a garden. But it was a German-medium, private school. So there was Twist St - which naturally was in Twist Street, right next to the steep road. It was co-educational, but boys and girls were strictly segregated, both in the dusty playgrounds and in classrooms. A stark red-brick building, noise of frequent trams clanging past; no sports field or pool. On Fridays pupils - girls in the morning, boys after 2pm - were taken to Ellis Park baths. Mother got an exemption for me because she'd heard that the swimming instructor tended to paw little girls during lessons.

A fat girl named Evelyn (pronounced Evaleen) befriended me, took me to visit her Russian grandparents in their tiny shop near the school, and I was introduced to an American invention: chewing gum. Blackjack gum came in strips and tasted deliciously of licorice, but Everlyn warned me under no circumstances to swallow the rubbery stuff. Well, it wasn't rubbery and I did swallow it, and Everlyn said the chewing gum would probably stick all my insides together and I might even die. I didn't, but was put off chewing gum for life.

I had one other friend at school; Iris Marthese was pretty, with silky blonde hair, and wore beautiful lace-trimmed blouses under her gymslip instead of the regulation shirt and tie. She, Everlyn and I would spend "big break" watching the hop-scotching hearties sweat and squeal.

One day Iris invited me to her home, Mother gave consent - "but be back by 3 o'clock" - and off we went. "Home" was a flat in a building just off Troye Street - and what an elegant place it was: draped, satiny pink curtains and plump pastel cushions all over the room. Iris's mother, pretty and dressed in something velvety and fluffy, greeted me kindly and said to enjoy the cookies and lemonade. Soon a man came in at the front door and Iris said "Hullo, Uncle Sidney". He and Mrs Marthese went in through a doorway, closing the door behind them.

I was enjoying a second glass of lemonade when another man arrived, "Hullo, Uncle Bert," said Iris. "Mummy's busy just now". The man - quite old, at least Dad's age - said he'd be back later. Suddenly it was 3 o'clock and I had to do a Cinderella. "You're a bit late," said Mother. "Never mind, did you enjoy your visit?" I spoke enthusiastically about the lovely pink room, the cookies and lemonade, and Iris's two uncles. Mother suddenly looked quite cross. I was never, ever to go to that place again, understand? And she'd rather I stopped the friendship. I was an obedient child, and confined friendship to Everlyn and her Russian grandparents, who sipped glasses of tea through sugar cubes. But I thought, once more, that grown-ups sometimes behaved very oddly indeed. there was no explaining them.

Yolandi

When God created Yolandi, He made her beautiful, big, powerful and fast - very fast! She shared an interest in cross-country running with her husband Riaan, who was an engine driver based at the huge Beaconsfield depot just outside Kimberley. With her arms pumping like the pistons of a steam locomotive, Yolandi had recently begun to take the lead and leave Riaan puffing far behind. He had lost all concentration after graduating in a part-time course on business administration. His problem was an offer of promotion to regional headquarters in Cape Town. Who would then take the same loving care of Engine Number 3463, which bore the unofficial nameplate of his wife?

Yolandi was one of almost 150 class 25 behemoths of 200 tons, which operated from Beaconsfield. Built by the North British Locomotive Works in Glasgow (Scotland), she was beautiful, powerful, big and fast - very fast! Riaan swore that she also had spirit and awareness. When silhouetted at night against the floodlit depot, Yolandi's twin smoke deflectors gave her the appearance of an eagle at rest with folded wings.

Her kind were the largest non-articulated steam locomotives in the world for narrow-gauge lines. Originally a condensing engine, she once had a long, low-slung 50,000 litre tender with a giant turbine-fan system to recycle exhaust steam into water. This obviated the need for water stops in the arid Karoo. However, when the old South African Railways & Harbours electrified the line, both her fan system and condensing chambers were removed. The sleek, cylindrical tender was then known by engine drivers as a "worshond", which is Afrikaans for "sausage dog"!

Although Yolandi was relegated to hauling freight between De Aar and Kimberley, she never sulked. Riaan looked after her well and no rust blemished her beauty in the clean dry air. Once she got into her stride and sped down the track, her thunder would echo long after reaching the finishing line. Ah - those were happy days! There was water to drink and plenty of food from the coal-face loading chute. Chugging out of the depot, she would wait patiently for the ash pit to be cleared. Meanwhile, Riaan would rake out her fire-box, check running gear and lovingly polish the cab controls.

Yolandi would then be driven to the blow-down pit. This was where she always gave her first indication of pent-up power. The local water supply contained impurities that form a corrosive deposit in her boiler. Before causing any harm, they were released by Riaan through a valve in a jet of high-pressure steam so strong that it could knock a person down. Often watched by other drivers envious of Riaan, Yolandi would then be driven to the main line at the start of yet another speed record.

One other class 25 locomotive could match Yolandi's power, but only once were they allowed to work in tandem. This was when a foreign journalist wanted to photograph their combined strength from the foot plate. As her huge pistons, connecting rods and wheels became a blur of motion, he became so dizzy that Riaan had to haul him back into the cab.

Shortly after this incident in 1989, Riaan's wife slipped while running down a culvert and fractured her skull against the rails. Steam then gave way to diesel and Yolandi was put out to pasture. Heartbroken, Riaan moved to Paul Sauer Building in Cape Town and concentrated on his career. By the turn of the century, he had reached the pinnacle of success with Spoornet. However, years of overworking and the resultant stress had strained his heart. Between meetings, he would often just stare at a framed picture of his deceased wife posing in front of his old locomotive.

And it came to pass that the Lord spoke to Riaan in a dream: "There is an angel who is beautiful, big, powerful and fast - very fast. She misses you as you miss her and I will bring about your eternal togetherness aboard Yolandi."

The hospital diagnosis of Riaan's heart problem was not good. For some reason, his presence was required on the engine's right-hand platform and he walked massively slowly. On his other side, he noticed a long row of passengers without passengers at every window. They suddenly started to clap as grinning railway officials handed him a plum-coloured driver's cap. Totally bewildered, now was then for is the front where a black 35 steam loco with its long water tender stood in immaculate condition.

A red carpet led to the cab, from where the driver and fireman beckoned Riaan to take a seat. But he first needed to identify the pony-sized engine. Proudly displayed was a well-polished brass Glasgow plate bearing the number 3455. Another plate in front brought tears to Riaan's eyes. It simply read - "Yolandi".

Of course, God's message to Riaan is purely speculative, but it has inevitably altered his life and I certainly felt like the conversation. He was apparently allowed to drive the engine on a long stretch, where she responded to his almost caressing touch of the controls with unprecedented acceleration. She seemed to recognize him and it was eerie to witness. Riaan suddenly looked in surprise to the side and held his arms in an embracing posture. He then died with a happy sigh. What struck the crew most was an immediate drop in speed for no apparent reason. Perhaps it was Yolandi's way of paying respect to two angels who were beautiful, big, powerful and fast - very fast.

Bevan Park

Top Cape National Parks Appointment

Manager of Cape Peninsula National Park (CPNP), Howard Langley, has been promoted by SA National Parks to the new position of "Regional" Park Manager for the national parks in the Cape region.

His responsibilities include the overall management of the CPNP, the West Coast National Park near Langebaan, the Agulhas National Park at the southernmost tip of Africa, the Bontebok National Park near Swellendam and the Tsitsikamma National Park.

"There is a great need to co-ordinate the management and marketing of the Cape parks and to integrate their transformation and development plans with the sustainable management of their biodiversity and their scenic and tourist resources. I am looking forward to the challenges that this new position offers and hope to make full use of the lessons I learnt in the CPNP," he says.

Born in Clevedy, Fish Hoek, where he still lives with his wife and three children, Howard has spent almost his entire working life conserving the Cape Peninsula. He started his career as a young ranger helping to establish the Cape of Good Hope Nature Reserve in the late 60s. He later became Chief Conservation Officer for the Regional Services Council, which included the management of the Rondevlei Nature Reserve, where he successfully introduced hippos to control an invasive grass from South America.

In 1985 he was appointed by SANParks as environmental manager for the newly created Cape Peninsula National Park, taking over from David Nairn (now CE of the Western Cape Nature Conservation Board) as Park Manager in December 1995. Hayward will continue to operate from the CPNP's head office in Westlake, Cape Town.

The position of Park Manager of the CPNP will be taken over by Brett Myrdal who has served as Manager of the Table Mountain Fund (TMF) for the past five years.

Born in Zimbabwe, 43-year old Brett now lives in Muizenberg with his wife, son and daughter. He grew up and schooled in Port Elizabeth and has a BSc Chemistry degree from the University of Cape Town (UCT) and a Master's degree in Town and Regional Planning from the University of Natal.

His ability to link science, social development and conservation is the result of life experience that started with a passion for rock-climbing on Table Mountain. This was followed by a decade of work in the ANC's underground in the eighties and including stints at the Harare Polytechnic's department of science and technology, the University of Port Elizabeth's Institute for Planning Research, the Development Action Group in Cape Town, and the CSIR Coastal Development Programme.

Later, as programme manager for Liebenberg & Stander, he headed Lwandle's "Hostels to Homes" upgrading project – and earned the national housing award for one of the largest and most successful projects of its kind in the Western Cape.
In 1998 he was appointed by the World Wide Fund for Nature (SA) as the first full time manager of the Table Mountain Fund, a capital trust fund for biodiversity conservation.

During his tenure, he developed the post into a strategically focussed programme aimed at developing projects in priority areas that linked biodiversity conservation with social upliftment. About fifty projects are now running in six focal areas.

He secured R10 million of Critical Ecosystem Partnership Funding (CEPF) for the TMF and led the Noordhoek Kommetjie Wetlands team in raising R24 million of the required R30 million to secure this missing link in the spine of the Cape Peninsula.

He played a leading role in initiating the Cape Flats Nature Programme focussed on Edith Stephens, Wolfgat, Macassar and Harmony Flats nature reserves operated by the City of Cape Town.

Brett is fully trilingual and his interests include mountaineering, rock climbing, swimming, surfing and jazz.

"I feel honoured to join Mavuso Msimang's team at SANParks and to accept the responsibility of leadership handed on from previous park managers. I look forward to carrying on the good work with the excellent team that manages the Cape Peninsula National Park," says Brett.

Silvermine Closes Gate for Upgrades

Visitors to Silvermine will soon enjoy a user-friendly parking area on top of Ou Kaapse Weg on the Muizenberg side of the road.

The Cape Peninsula National Park (CPNP) announced that gate two to Silvermine will be closed until 12 May when the upgrading will be completed.
CPNP spokesperson, Stephen Hulbert, says alternative parking is available at the Silvermine Ticket Office or the view site car park just beyond the boom on the road leading to the ticket office.
"We have identified the area as a high priority site as it serves as a gateway to the southern half of the Park's central section. Due to the regular use of the area it became seriously degraded and now requires rehabilitation.

Healing

Therapies to assist coping with a number of conditions and to help maintain general health, are available at the doctors rooms, 198 Queens Road, Simons Town. These are:

Reflexology and Meridian Therapy
A deep and relaxing treatment, mostly on the feet. The treatment stimulates detoxification, and helps to restore balance to the body. Regular treatment often improves energy levels and sleep difficulties.

Therapeutic Massage
Light and deep tissue techniques (adjusted for medical and comfort requirements) – both effective for tension release and relaxation (full or half body treatments, using oil).

Lymphatic drainage (full body, gentle massage, using oil) for stimulating lymphatic flow to improve circulation and reduce fluid retention.

Indian head massage (scalp, face, neck and shoulders - received in a seated position). Simulates circulation in the brain - to reduce tension, headaches, eye strain etc.

These therapies are provided daily (except Sunday) by Clare Roy, registered with Allied Health Professions Council of SA, reg no: A5098

Complementary basic facilities such as ablutions and an information centre are envisage for a later stage. Contact the Section Ranger for enquiries at Tel: (021) 789-2455/6/7.

The Wild Coast Odyssey - Part 1

This is an account of a journey of exploration of the Wildcoast coastal resorts, undertaken by three Simonites, comprising Langbroek Loxton (LB), Kortbroek Kaalvoet Coetzee (KK) and André Pirouette Duraan (AP). The nicknames are significant: Paul usually wears short pants and prefers to walk around barefoot; he also drives barefoot: he maintains shoes make his feet hot and he feels uncomfortable. Anyway he says he has better control over the pedals with bare feet.

Now for André Duraan: the evening of our first night in camp at Tsitsikama Park he performed an impromptu ballet-like dance specially choreographed and orchestrated by a Captain Morgan - hence the nickname pirouette; by the way, AP hates ballet, but he knows enough to go through the motions.

Wed 5 March: 08:30 depart Simon's Town in AP's double cab 4 x 4 Toyota diesel, with baggage trailer in tow - fully loaded: almost overloaded, missing only the kitchen sink! I sit squashed up in the back seat, KK navigates and AP drives. I make a plea that it would be nice to overnight in Knysna and enjoy an oyster dinner. Overruled; we are heading for Tsitsikama Park. I discover that KK has carefully planned the whole trip, scheduled to last 14 days, complete with all night-stops etc. So, we duly arrive at Tsitsikama at about 4pm after stops at George and Knysna. Place is fully booked as regards chalets - so, camping in the tent it has to be.

What a palaver that turns out to be. Quite apparent that neither KK nor AP are familiar with this rather complicated tent, in which everything is in one piece - including the ground sheet. After much cursing and grumbling the tent is eventually up. I have an old stretcher and a First World War canvas sleeping bag - a bit of furniture which draws much negative comment because of its bulk when rolled up. However, I return criticism when KK laboriously pumps up two mattresses, each the area of a double bed. When these large mattresses are put in one tent, there is hardly any space for my stretcher.

After a braai of sheep ribs prepared by AP, followed by AP's ballet performance, we retire. But AP is a loud snorer, so try my trick of 3 pressure points below each ear - and lo! it worked: no snoring that night.

Thursday 6 March: At first light, set off on narrow path with many steps and rickety handrail in most parts to Storms River suspension bridge, a walk of about an hour. This bridge is secure enough but tends to wobble and sway somewhat when you reach the middle, a span of about 100 metres. And can you believe it - there's a horde of sharks swimming below! KK is all excited, but I don't see them, so we wait on the other side for the sun to hit the water, and I see the slow-moving graceful forms. KK says they are so-called "soup fin" shark (must have a more appropriate name?) which come into the fresh water to get their teeth cleaned: like the true story of the crocodile and the bird that cleans the reptile's teeth. My comment of "nonsense" creates a big argument.

Later in the day when we visit Tsitsikama Village, a Nature Conservation officer suggests that the sharks enter the fresh water to get rid of the parasites - I still say "nonsense", resulting in more argument. There is need of proper research and proof!! Perhaps a reader will have the answer. (Perhaps the sharks just want a refreshing drink of cool, clean water, unsalted?)

Back in camp and we go touring. Nature's Valley comes as a surprise: a small resort housing development under an umbrella of thicket, almost claustrophobic. Development regulations must have specified minimal clearing of the natural bush. Next, the Bloukrantz bridge and the observation or lookout area where one can buy a ticket to go bungee jumping: the highest jump in the world from the middle of the bridge. An access passageway to the centre has been constructed on the underside of the bridge. We actually witness two jumpers go over the side - CRAZY!

Friday 7 March: Due to break camp and depart - but first, to realise KK's lifelong dream to swim with the sharks. So off to a small beach next to the restaurant, and there we find a shoal of sharks. So KK dives in with goggles and mask to follow the sharks. Strangely, the sharks show respect and deliberately avoid KK, doubling back and swimming past him, at speed. Anyway, dream realised, and KK declared this was the highlight of the trip.

In summary, a beautiful spot and much of interest to see and experience. A visit of a couple of days is highly recommended.
To follow: Gnube and Port St Johns.

Dryden Dymond - Part 3

(Excerpts from the biography by Vice Admiral Sir Alan Grose KBE)

In early 1946 a general demob of all wartime South African forces took place, pending the re-establishment of a Permanent Force in their stead. A required number of 60 officers and 800 ratings was needed for the South African Navy. RPDD was one of the volunteers selected, and his first four years in the peacetime Navy were spent in a series of sea commands: first Natal, from 1946 to 1948, then Good Hope again from 1948 to 1949, and finally HMSAS Jan van Riebeeck in 1950.

In January 1948, with RPDD in command, Natal went to Marion and Prince Edward Islands, to proclaim sovereignty over them, ceremoniously, on behalf of the Union Government. While anchored off Marion Island a violent storm almost drove the ship ashore; all RPDD's skill and his reputation as an exceptionally fine seaman and experienced ship-handler were put to the test. After refitting Natal in Simon's Town RPDD took part in first-ever exercises between units of the SA Navy, Royal Navy and the US Navy, before handing the ship over and taking up command of Good Hope again.

In mid-1948 the SANF moved base from Cape Town to Salisbury Island, Durban; for the first time it had its own quays, workshops, storehouses, training facilities, offices and living quarters in one compact area.

During RPDD's second period in command of Good Hope, the ship cruised up the west coast of Africa in company with Natal and Transvaal, in August 1949. The ships called at Messamedes, Lobito, Luanda and Matadi. Navigating the hazards of the River Congo were challenging. RPDD faced a series of disciplinary problems among some members of their ships' companies. A few weeks after this troubled cruise RPDD was promoted to Commander. His final sea command was to be in the first destroyer operated by the SANF: HMS Wessex, purchased from the Royal Navy at the end of 1949. She was renamed Jan van Riebeeck at a ceremony in Simon's Town on 29 March 1950. After an extensive refit in the dockyard and successful sea-trials, the ship arrived at Salisbury Island on 6 October 1950.

In 1951 RPDD, in Jan van Riebeeck took part in a series of exercises off the South African coast, with units of the Royal Navy, and also visited a number of local ports. In December 1952 RPDD was promoted to Captain, to take up a new appointment as Officer Commanding Salisbury Island. In March 1953 he was awarded the Efficiency Decoration. In early January 1954, while remaining in charge of the base at Salisbury Island, RPDD took on the additional responsibilities as temporary OC Coastal Command at Youngsfield, Cape Town. A few weeks after acting as host to the visiting Brigadier-General Jean Landouzy, RPDD underwent a major brain operation which required lengthy surgery in Cape Town by Dr de Villiers Hammon, the eminent Cape Town neurosurgeon. Happily RPDD made a speedy recovery and was able to lead an expedition to Bouvet Island in the South Atlantic, 1600 miles south of Cape Town. He had been chosen because of his experience on Marion and Price Edward Islands.

SA Navy Band Goes International

The guest speaker at the Admiralty House Concert on 23 February was Brigadier Mel Jameson (MBE), the Producer of the world famous Edinburgh Military Tattoo.

Apart from this very complementary remarks concerning the Navy Band he confided later that this was the best Garden Party he had ever attended. However he was anxious that "The Queen" did not hear of this (he had attended several at Buckingham Palace)!

It was confirmed that the SA Navy Band will perform during the 2004 Edinburgh Tattoo and will be considered for inclusion on the equally famous Festival, the biggest in the world, which runs concurrently.

This very busy group of musicians are already scheduled to represent South Africa in Germany and Holland during August this year. They have also been chosen to perform again at the International Music Show in Bremen in January 2004, being one of twelve who were specially selected out of the approximately four hundred bands from around the world who had performed in Bremen during the last thirty nine years. The SA Navy Band will in fact be the "Band of the Year" in this special Anniversary Show and a Press plus PR team from Germany will be in Simon's Town later this year to video the musicians and their environment, plus other aspects of Simon's Town and beyond. As can be seen, the Navy Band is putting Simon's Town on the world map and several visitors from Europe have already B & B'd locally as a result of hearing our "new music for a new South Africa" when we visited them. Many Ambassadors and Consuls General from various Countries, stationed both here and in Europe, have commented about how highly they rate the South African Navy Band as a representative of this country. We are extremely grateful to the sponsors who are making it possible for us to be involved in this valuable work, although there is a constant need to attract financial support bearing in mind that most of these projects must be at no cost to the State.

The next public appearance of the Band will be a Muizenberg Pavilion on May 17 (contact Fran Spencer-Smith on 083 357 5822) and you can meanwhile hear their amazing variety by obtaining the latest CD (part 3) via the Band Office - contact Marcello on 072 150 7513.

Simon's Town Police Service Personnel "At your service!"

Inspector Ian Cooke and Inspector Shane Cornelius

Inspector Ian Cook

It is very comforting to know that a majority of our police personnel are "Local lads". Ian comes from a family very committed to bringing law and order to the community. Born in Wynberg, the family then moved to Simon's Town as his father was in the SAP here for a while before joining the Naval Military Police, and going on to become the Station Commander at Winfield base. His sister is a Captain in the SAP at Fish Hoek. Ian has another sister who is currently living in New Zealand.

After school Ian completed his military training in the mechanized infantry and thereafter joined the SAP, completing his training in Pretoria before moving down to the Cape. He came back to Simon's Town in 1999 where he forms part of our fabulous team.

His wife, Dorothy, is also a Cape girl, hailing from Wellington and they have a beautiful 4 year old daughter, Michelle. To escape from the stresses of their busy lives, Ian loves to fish and Dot paints ceramic pottery and makes Teddy Bears.

He appeals to the Simon's Town public to work closely with the police service. He is one of the men who answers your emergency calls. No matter what time of the day or night, they will be at your service.

Insp. Shane Cornelius

It is a great pity that Shane did not continue with his hobby of motorcross as he achieved National event level and really enjoyed the sport. However, all that was given up to begin his career in the SAP. Born in Natal he went to school at Glenwood Boys High, then on to do his police training in Pretoria. After 5 years of working in Pinetown the heat and humidity got him down so he resigned and moved to Cape Town to take up a position as Area Manager for a private security company.

However, police service was his first choice so in 1998 he joined our team in Simon's Town.

He is married to Natasha who is a police Inspector in Fish Hoek. He still enjoys the motorcross but now, unfortunately as a spectator only. He and Natasha are kept pretty busy with DIY projects on their home in Sun Valley.

Shane is the Shift Commander and has been working together with Inspector Ian Cooke for two years now. These are the men who answer your calls and come out to assist when required. They make an excellent team.

Shane appeals to the public to be more vigilant and get to know your neighbour. Become involved in the neighbourhood watch. Help them to help you.

During April the brightest constellation in the evening sky in the west at sunset is Orion the Hunter, south of the ecliptic, followed by his Big Dog, Canis Major and Little Dog Canis Minor. North of the ecliptic (pathway of the planets) are Gemini the Twins, castor is west of Pollux, followed by rather dim Cancer the Crab, and the bright Leo the Lion, with its first magnitude star Regulus, which is 70 times brighter than our Sun. Next on the ecliptic is Virgo with the bright alpha called Spica. The Southern Cross, the Coal Sack, the pointers alpha and beta Centauri, Musca the Fly, the Diamond Cross and the False Coussaie are very evident in the southern sky at this time of the year in the sixth-ern Milky Way.

The Southern Cross and Pointers are circumpolar and turn in a clockwise direction around the south Polar Star Sigma Octans in 12 hours. The Pointers are always behind the Cross. It was at this time of the year in 1610 on 28 April that Galileo Galilei discovered the major moons of the planet Jupiter and the rocky craters on the Moon. Kepler wrote, "What other conclusion shall we draw from this difference, Galileo, than that the fixed stars generate their light from within, whereas the planets, being opaque, are illuminated from without, that is, to use Giordano Bruno's terms, the former are suns, the latter planets or earths." Bruno was burned at the stake for making that statement in 1600.

Kepler continued, "You have conferred a blessing on astronomers and physicists by revealing the true nature of the Milky Way, the Nebulae and Nebulous conversions. You have upheld those writers who, being ap-reached the same conclusion as you, they are nothing but a mass of stars. Innumerable luminosities blend on account of the dullness of our eyes." From Sidereus Nuncius, by Galileo Galilei.

The Planets

Mercury, magnitude -1.5 may be seen low in the west after sunset.

Transit of Mercury: There is a rare transit of Mercury across the face of the Sun on 7 May, beginning at 7:12am until 12:42pm. This starts before sunrise, as sunrise is at 7:20am. Binoculars, covered with a safety filter should be used to view this interesting phenomenon which next occurs on 8 Nov. Visible in 2032, and again on 9 May 2016. Transits usually occur at intervals of 7, 13 and 46 years. "The length of the chord traversed by the planet in its passage across the Sun's disk determines the duration of a transit, which can last up to 8 hours." The full length of the transit is visible in Beaufort West, Bloemfontein, Durban and Johannesburg. The transit will occur below the Sun's equator on the east side of Sun from 7:12am. Mercury will appear as a black dot moving across the Sun's disk, from east to west. It is hoped that 7 May will be a clear day! and that everybody has the correct solar filter material to put across the front lenses of their binoculars. A special effort should be made to see it, as it was one of the astronomical "happenings" used to calculate the size of the Earth. Captain Cook was in the Pacific to measure the transit of Venus. He was murdered in 1779 at Hawaii.

Venus, magnitude -4.0 is a very bright early morning planet in the east until the second week in July, being 3° north of the Moon on the 28th.

Mars, magnitude +0.8, will be found in Capricornus this month in the east, in the morning sky. It will be 3° north of the Moon on the 23rd.

Jupiter, magnitude -2.5, is visible throughout the night with its 4 large moons, Callisto, Ganymede, Europa, and Io, in the constellation of Cancer.

Saturn, magnitude +0.1, is an evening planet with its ring system in a convenient position for viewing from Earth. It is 3° south of the Moon on the 8rd. It moves from Taurus in mid March into Orion in mid May.

Uranus, magnitude +5.9, is in the morning sky. It is 5° north of the Moon on the 25th.

Neptune, magnitude +8.0, is in the morning sky in Capricornus, a telescope is needed to see it.

Pluto, magnitude +13.9, is in Serpens but is only visible if a telescope of larger than 10" is used.

Stars or planets having a magnitude of more than 6 cannot be seen without binoculars. A one magnitude star is 100 times brighter than a 6 magnitude star. Each magnitude is 2½ times brighter than the previous one.

The Moon: New Moon is on the 1st. First Quarter on the 10th. Full Moon is on the 16th and Last Quarter is on the 23rd. On the 17th it is at perigee, and at apogee on the 4th, when it is furthest from Earth. There is a total lunar eclipse on the 16th of May at 03:05hrs.

The Sun: The transit of Mercury is an exciting event which occurs on the 7th May from 7:12am until 12:51pm. Solar filters must be used to see this very interesting phenomenon. On the 1st sunrise is at 6:55am and sunset at 6:41pm. On April the 30th sunrise is at 7:20am and sunset at 6:06pm.

Meteor Showers: The Delta Pavonids occur on the 6th April at 2am. The April Lyrids occur on the 22nd at 3am. The Pi Puppids occur on the 26rd from 7pm until 10pm. Good viewing! The Alpha Scorpiids occur from 11th until the 12th May from 4 - 5am. The Eta Aquariids occur from the 21st until the 12th May from 4 -5am.

Comets: There have been no reports of sightings, as the present comets are in the evening sky at sunset and in the morning sky at sunrise and so are not visible. Good viewing. Make preparations for seeing the transit of Mercury on the 7th May.

Peninsula Tourism Report

The first quarter of the New Year 2003 has been exceptionally busy with an invasion of visitors mostly from the cold northern hemisphere. We do expect an influx of Germen, Dutch and British tourists every year, but this year there has been a surprising number of other European especially Swedish visitors to the town. The message to be the happy results of recent South African tourism drive in Sweden.

Two especially notable Swedish visitors were Ann-Marie and Lars Ljungha. Just before New Year Lars had a nasty accident at Seafoam beach when he broke his femur - after a stint in hospital, he bravely continued his holiday. With the help of Ann-Marie and kind host and hostess, Nick and Pat Kimball of Argyles Place, he even managed to trestle to the Navy Band Concert held in Admiralty Gardens - despite the injuries, they have booked a return trip to Argyles place next year. Most a number of return visits are being planned in advance from the numerous requests received in February and March for accommodation early in 2004. Many visitors enjoying their 2003 holidays have been inspecting flats and houses for their retirement. Cape Town tourism has recorded a 20% increase in the number of visitors to Cape Town in the 2002/2003 season. Simon's Town information Bureau staff have certainly been aware of the increase and it appears that 2003/2004 will be an even better season.

Looking back at the season we were able to sell more tickets to the New Year Party than in previous years. The party was most successful attracting a record number of happy revellers. The hard working organising committee deserve sincere congratulations for their services to the town. Apart from the generous donations to local community organisations and charities, the funds raised at the Millennium fund, which was established to benefit the town, last year the fund paid for a mobile bandstage for concerts like Carhuderness, Fish Freeman, St Patrpayers) and Dave Hurwitz (ST Publicity Assoc) were responsible for the initiative.

In addition to the flood or requests for accommodation, the information has answered a record number of queries on an amazing variety of topics such as requests for boat trips, day excursions, especially to Cape Point, the wine route, Kirstenbosch, Table Mountain and the V&A Waterfront, restaurant and shopping information and numerous requests for road and hiking maps. We direct visitors to other tourist offices, mainly Garden Route, Hermanus and the West Coast. There are many queries about lost keys, cameras and cellphones - we even saved a small dog from the main road traffic! A warm thank you to the Glencairn Veterinary Clinic for keeping the frightened little dog until he was claimed by his traffic cop owner. Throughout the season sales of maps, postcards and popular "City Slickers" Penguin video have been brisk. Since October 2002 we have sold a record number of Green cards (Season Tickets to the CPNP) R60,000 worth of tickets at least have been sold. Almost every visitor to the Bureau asks for directions to the penguin colony and Cape Point. The four excellent museums and the mineral world are also very popular.
Without doubt the highlight of the year has been the Navy festival (20 - 22 March) which was exceptionally well organised this year by Capt Glen Knox and his hardworking team. Despite erratic weather the festival was an outstanding success - on the public holiday 21 March 60,000 visitors flocked to the Festival. The resulting traffic congestion created problems as visitors were forced to crawl along the main road in very hot weather.
The festival started with the traditional Navy Band Dry-Dock Concert - a great annual favourite. The right of entry parade was very impressive with ships companies marching along behind the Navy Band. Particularly noticeable were the Navy's canine brigade and the Navy divers (must have been boiling hot in those wetsuits) - this wonderful colourful parade was a great credit to the SA Navy and Simon's Town.
The members of the Simon's' Town Business Assoc (especially Malinda Coetzee) are to be congratulated for their initiative in organising events in a marquee on Jubilee Square during the festival. The Jazz concerts and other events helped to bring the festival into the town.
Well the season is not over yet and the end of March has been the annual influx of owners of large Great Danes to celebrate Just Nuisance Day. This popular event was generously sponsored this year by Dave Hurwitz, owner of the popular vessel "Spirit of Just Nuisance".
Although the town has been so busy the future of the tourism bureau remains very uncertain as the Cape Provincial and Municipal authorities discuss centralising tourism by amalgamating existing tourism bureaux.
The busy season certainly seems to confirm the value of local information offices but the experts will decide. We are looking forward to a busy Easter with the annual Easter Yachting Regatta and other events.

NSRI. Station 10 Simon's Town

It is very hard to credit that a quarter of this year has already flown by and in that time the Cricket World Cup has come and gone and now a disastrous war is under way in Iraq. Thankfully on the Sea Rescue front a relatively quiet period has been experienced by the crews of Station 10 as not many calls of a serious nature have occurred this quarter.

Another event that has come and gone is the Pick 'n Pay /Argus cycle tour at which Station 10's 4x4 mobile, manned by Chops Craig and Louis Duimelaar stood by to be of assistance if required.

No doubt many Simon's Town residents will recall seeing large pails of black smoke billowing from a vessel off Miller's Point on the $_{8}$th of March. Station 10 members received the call at 09:10 on Thursday morning. At 09:28 the "Eddie Beaumont II" launched with Coxn Warren Combrinck and crewmen Jaco Els and Tim Hart they reached the trawler "Silver Bounty" at 09:40 but were told by the skipper that all was under control, that they had blown a turbo generator and that they would be able to make their own way to Simon's Town. The rescue craft returned to Simon's Town and was recovered at 09:52. Crew members were able to return to their places of work after washing and stowing the craft by 10:30. The 4x4 Mobile had also gone to Miller's Point as a radio link with Chops Craig and Dennis Zimmerman on board.

The next call-outs occurred, as sometimes happens in life when the time is not opportune. "Spirit of Freemasonry" was temporarily out of commission as the fuel tanks were being surveyed. On the $_{12}$th of March at 15:50 a call was received from the Station Commander that a kite surfer at Muizenberg had had his kite blown out to sea. "Eddie Beaumont II" was launched at 16:08 with Coxswain Darren Zimmerman and Jaco Els and Tim Hart as crew. On this day a 25 knot North Westerly wind was blowing and the kite was recovered about 1 mile North of Seal Island. On return of the kite to the owner he gave the Station a R200.00 donation to cover the fuel used by the boat. While this call was in progress another call was received to go to the assistance of a 7 metre Trimaran that was in difficulty near Miller's Point As the yacht was so large and upon assessment of the situation by Station personnel sent to the scene overland in the 4x4 it was decided to ask the Navy Operations room if they would send out a Nammacurra to assist the vessel. This was done and the vessel was brought to a mooring in Simon's Bay. At this time it was discovered that the vessel had no valid safety certificate. This was reported to the Chairman of the False Bay Yacht Club safety committee who would investigate the matter.

At 16:10 on the same day a call was received from the Station Commander at Kommetjie asking for the "Eddie Beaumont II" to be towed to Kommetjie to stand by to assist the "Sea Princess" which had 60 passengers on board and was in difficulty off Hout Bay. The boat was towed to Kommetjie but did not launch and thus returned to the Simon's Town base at 19:50. This time the crew would have been Coxswain Warren Combrinck, Shaun Brunsman and Jaco Sie with the rescue driven by Darryl Zimmerman with Brad Yeatman as his helper.

On Monday the 13th of March a report was received at Port Control Cape Town that a boat had had an unarmed civil offence at Cape Point. The craft was thought to be a pedal skiff. The call came in at 1621 and the "Spirit of Freemasonry", now back in service, launched at 1815 with Coxswain Lee Adcock, Mark Pelham, Geoff Lochhead and Jaco Sie. A Skymaster helicopter was also tasked, in this case reported that they could see nothing. The crew made a thorough search of the area but found nothing and returned to the base.

During the week 17 to 21 March a conference of the International Lifeboat Association took place in Cape Town where representatives from all the national operations Rescue Services met for their annual conference. "Spirit of Freemasonry" was tasked to Granger Bay where on Friday 21 March it was on display along with other N.S.R.I. boats for the delegates to see and to be available to take them out to sea. The vessel returned to the Simon's Town base on Saturday 22 March after being moored overnight in Hout Bay harbour. The last leg of the return trip took place in heavy weather between Hout Bay and Cape Point. Rough seas and strong winds were experienced but all crew members were very positive about the way the vessel took the sea conditions.

On Saturday 22 a joint N.S.R.I. / S.A.A.F. exercise was to take place in Simon's Bay had to be postponed until a more suitable date. All that remains is to say that April will be a month where Rescue Services need to be on their toes over the coming Easter holidays especially the Rescue needs to be vigilant. Keep safely in mind.

Yours aye, Don Dollery

It seems that the "wrecking gangs" are back in the area. Be sure to have your vehicle and trailer "manure seeker" driving a blue bakkie and beat them during the rounds. This driver acquires whether you need manure. If you agree, he then off-loads a small quantity of manure and demands an exorbitant payment. If you do not want to pay he becomes aggressive and intimidating. If you are confronted by this individual please contact the Simon's Town SAPS. Remember together we can make a difference!
